Ahoy — Leder Games — $40

2 - 4 Players // 45 - 75 minutes // Medium Weight // Area Control // Asymmetric

Another heartbreakingly cute but cutthroat scuffle from Leder Games. Ahoy has the same asymmetrical but interactive elements as Root with a slightly easier and faster gameplay that makes it approachable to more players.

In Ahoy you are swashbucklers and soldiers on the high seas. Each round, you'll roll and place dice to take the unique actions of your faction. As you control regions and deliver cargo, you'll gain Fame. The most famous seafarer wins!

Apiary — Stonemaier Games — $75

1 - 5 Players // 60 - 90 minutes // Medium Weight // Worker Placement // Resource Management

In a (hopefully) far-distant future, humans no longer inhabit Earth. The cause of their disappearance (or perhaps their demise) is unknown, but their absence left a void ready to be filled by another sentient species. Apiary is a competitive, worker-placement, hive-building game about hyper-intelligent bees in space. Space bees!? Space bees!!

Arcs — Stonemaier Games — $60

2 - 4 Players // 60 - 120 minutes // Medium Weight // Area Control // Strategy // Tactics

Sponsor: JP B. // Woodbine League of Games

A sharp, punchy space opera of shifting alliances, bold gambits, and dramatic betrayals. Players use a neat trick-taking inspired card system to take actions — moving fleets, battling rivals, and seizing control of key locations while evolving objectives keep everyone on edge. It's interactive, tense, and chaotic, but not chaotic enough for you to forget who stabbed you in the back.

Brink (Deluxe Edition) — IV Studio — $140

2 - 5 Players // 90 - 120 minutes // Medium Weight // Worker Placement // Negotiation

Sponsor: Logan // Woodbine League of Games

In Brink, players command a fleet of starships, explore new regions, collect and trade resources, and secretly vote on what hexes score points. Brink delivers dynamic, high interaction experience where every choice ripples across the galaxy and no expedition plays the same way twice. AND it packs like a Marie Kondo IKEA masterclass.

Dominion — Rio Grande Games — $50

2 - 4 Players // 30 minutes // Medium Weight // Deck Builder

Sponsor: Zac, Creative Director & Cofounder // IV Studio

> The OG deckbuilder. Players start with a tiny, unimpressive deck and gradually buy better cards to build a powerful engine of money, actions, and victory points. Every game uses a different set of kingdom cards, so the strategy changes constantly — one moment you're building a smooth combo machine, the next you're scrambling to keep up. Oh, so we're buying provinces now, huh?

Fractured Sky (Deluxe Edition) — IV Studio — $150

2 - 5 Players // 90 - 120 minutes // Medium Weight // Area Control // Resource Management

> Fractured Sky places you at the helm of an airship expedition to recover fragments of a magical falling star. Its gameplay is a unique combination of area control, resource management, blind bidding, and a hint of deduction. OH YEAH and magnets. Lots and lots of clicky, snappy, all-is-right-with-the-world magnets.

Root — Leder Games — $60

2 - 4 Players // 60 - 90 minutes // Medium - Heavyweight // Area Control // Asymmetric

Sponsors: Catherine & Ellie // Woodbine League of Games

Root is a game full of delightful woodland creatures. Under the disarmingly cute cartoon world of lil critters lies a complex game that gets better with every play. At the beginning of the game each player chooses a faction. These factions have dramatically different styles, capabilities, and immediate goals. The differing rules and goals means that everyone is playing their own game. However, the objectives force players to be very aware of other players and in some cases directly compete with them. This creates a unique experience of an asymmetric game that is also very competitive and interactive. I've never once played without wanting to run it back immediately.

à la carte:

- The Riverfolk Expansion $40
- The Marauder Expansion $50
- The Underworld Expansion $50
- The Landmarks Pack $10
- The Vagabond Pack $10

Scythe — Stonemaier Games — $105

1- 5 Players // 90 - 120 minutes // Medium - Heavyweight // Area Control // Resource Management

In Scythe, each player represents a fallen leader attempting to restore their honor and lead their faction to power in Eastern Europa. Players conquer territory, enlist new recruits, reap resources, gain villagers, build structures, and activate powerful mechs.

Scythe is an engine-building, asymmetric, competitive board game set in an alternate-history 1920s period. It is a time of farming and war, broken hearts and rusted gears, innovation and valor.

Tapestry — Stonemaier Games — $110

1- 5 Players // 90 - 120 minutes // Medium Weight // Area Control // Resource Management // Civ Building

Create the civilization with the most storied history, starting at the beginning of humankind and reaching into the future. The paths you choose will vary greatly from real-world events or people — your civilization is unique!

Terraforming Mars — FryxGames — $80

1- 5 Players // 120 minutes // Medium - Heavyweight // Area Control // Resource Management

Corporations are competing to transform Mars into a habitable planet by spending vast resources, and using innovative technology to raise temperature, create a breathable atmosphere, and make oceans of water. As terraforming progresses, more and more people will immigrate from Earth to live on the Red Planet.

In Terraforming Mars, you control a corporation with a certain profile. Play project cards, build up production, place your cities and green areas on the map, and race for milestones and awards!

Vantage — Stonemaier Games — $90

1- 6 Players // 120 - 180 minutes // Medium Weight // Open World // Exploration // Narrative Strategy // RPG

Sponsor: Anna, Owner & Cofounder // Woodbine League of Games

There are elements in Vantage that might remind you of an open world videogame or a choose your own adventure book, but there are also plenty of game mechanics to keep players busy. At the beginning of the game each player finds themselves separated from their companions and stranded on an unknown planet. At every location the player has a series of choices about what to do in that location and where to go next. The following steps and story depend entirely on what the player chooses. Explore mysterious towers, romance a sentient, or just burn down a boat to gain its riches - it's all up to you!

Veiled Fate (Metal Edition) — IV Studio — $155

1- 6 Players // 120 - 180 minutes // Medium Weight // Strategic Deduction // Hidden Identity

A game of hidden influence full of playful banter and careful strategy. Use positional play and secret voting to influence the fate of 9 demigods. Strike the perfect balance of wit and mischief to capture the throne. And yeah, there will probably be deception, disbelief, and yelling.

à la carte:

- Veiled Fate Tribunal (Metal Edition) $100

Viticulture (Essential Edition) — Stonemaier Games — $65

1- 6 Players // 60 - 90 minutes // Medium Weight // Resource Management // Worker Placement

In Viticulture, you find yourself in rustic, pre-modern Tuscany, where you've inherited a meager vineyard. You own a few plots of land, an old crush pad, a tiny cellar, a few workers… and the dream of owning the best winery in Italy. The game that put Stonemaier on the map!
